A 4 bedroom home designed with Pizzazz!

Built approx 1962 this architect designed 4 bedroom home has a wow factor and lots on offer. Set in a quiet street a short walk to Newcastle University with plenty of space and style.

The 1960's was a transformational era, that brought along the change of thought-paradigm, rupture with old values, and creations of new musical, artistic and constructive movements. An era full of daring projects based on questioning concepts and breaking free of old paradigm. This home does just that!

If you like split level living and open plan living this home will impress, with high square set ceilings, loads of natural light and all the comforts you look for.

A beautiful large and functional new kitchen that allows you to cook and entertain at the same time, the size of this home takes up most of the 588m block still leaving you enough space to enjoy the outdoors and entertaining. There is a covered outdoor area overlooking the pool as well as an open deck.

The main bedroom has en-suite with robe, 3 other bedrooms are also a good size. There are internal stairs to the garage and more storage areas, with the double garage under the home you have space for 2 more cars off street.
